

THIRSTY MAN IN THE DESERT

A man was walking in the desert under the hot sun; he was quite thirsty. He saw a Bedouin riding a camel and asked him if he had any water. The bedouin said: "No, I haven't, but I do have some ties." The Bedouin showed the man some ties. The thirsty man said: "No, thank you. I don't want any ties." The man continued walking; he was getting more thirsty. Then he saw another Bedouin riding a camel, and asked him if he had any water; the Bedouin said: "No, I haven't, but I do have some ties" and showed the man some ties. The thirsty man said: "No, thank you. I don't want any ties! I need water!"

The thirsty man was getting very, very thirsty now! Thirty minutes later he met another Bedouin riding a camel. He asked him the same question and got the same answer the first two Bedouins gave him!

Thirty minutes later the thirsty man felt he was dying of thirst! Just at that moment he saw in the distance a beautiful hotel with lovely green gardens and fountains and pools of delicious cool water. He thought: "At last! I can drink as much water as I like!" He came up to the hotel and knocked on the front door. A man came to the door and said: "Yes? Can I help you?" The thirsty man said: "Please can I have a drink of water?!" The other man said: "Do you have a tie?" The thirsty man said: "No, I'm sorry! I don't have a tie." To this the other man answered: "Sorry sir, we don't allow people to drink here who are not wearing ties!"
